Praise for The Copper Street Brass Quintet

If you missed The Copper Street Brass Quintet last week then you missed a lot...they blew the roof off the place!

- *Faulk County Register, Faulkton Area Arts Council Series

The CSBQ is a group whose smart programming and bright personalities have taken the brass quintet to a new level. The ensemble has gone from strength to strength.

- *Steve Staruch, Host, Classical Minnesota Public Radio

The CSBQ can do it all. From in your face Tower of Power-style aggressive brass virtuosity to subtle symphonic nuance, The CSBQ delivers. I just love their sonic footprint in live shows, on their albums, and in the studio. This is an incredible group and it was an honor for me to be their sound engineer in the studio!

- *Matthew Zimmerman, Wild Sound Studio, Minneapolis, MN

The Copper Street Brass Quintet did a great job in selecting their repertoire to match our patrons preferences. Their performance was definitely "crowd pleasing". They are delightful individuals and I look forward to working with them in the future.

Our entire experience, from first contact through load-out, was delightful. Our patrons loved their performance. I highly recommend this group!

- *Mark Georgensen, Minnesota Orchestra

They are five individually superb players, and their group sound is tremendously exciting!

- *Matt Greer, Director of Music at St. John's Methodist, Albuquerque, NM

The Copper Street Brass Quintet is an exciting new group on the brass scene. Their original, inventive programming appeals to audiences of all ages.

- *Allan Dean, trumpeter in the St. Louis Brass Quintet, professor at Yale University

In terms of relevancy and genius, The CSBQ is like the "South Park" of brass quintets!

- *Bill Morelock, Host, Classical Minnesota Public Radio
